The American Society of Criminology embodies the following objectives:

1. To bring together, in one multidisciplinary society, persons actively engaged in research teaching, and/or practice in the field of criminology.
2. To foster criminological scholarship, research, education, and training within academic institutions and within the divisions of the criminal justice system, including public and private agencies concerned with crime, justice, and corrections.
3. To encourage scholarly, scientific, and practical exchange and cooperation among those engaged in criminology.
4. To serve as a forum for the dissemination of criminological knowledge.

GREETINGS FROM THE PROGRAM CHAIRS

Pamela Wilcox and John Wooldredge, University of Cincinnati

It is with pleasure that we welcome you to the great city of Chicago and the 68th annual meeting of the American Society of Criminology. It has been our honor to spearhead the organization of a conference that involves so many talented and diverse participants – over 3000 from around the globe, representing a comprehensive range of institutional affiliations.

We trust that the extensive intellectual energy that defines ASC is reflected in the program. This year's program is the largest ever for our organization. There are over 800 sessions, beginning early Wednesday morning and continuing through Saturday morning. Every day of the conference promises stimulating sessions that will fill rooms across seven floors of the glorious Palmer House Hilton. Each day includes paper sessions, roundtables, and Author Meets Critics sessions as well as numerous panels devoted to professional development. The poster session, which includes a wine-and-cheese reception, will be held from 5:00 to 7:00 pm on Thursday in the Grand Ballroom.

The conference theme “Thinking about Context: Challenges for Crime and Justice”, aside from being an obvious homage to the late James Q. Wilson, plays off our rapidly growing awareness of the relevance of “context” for topics well beyond the traditional criminological applications to urban neighborhoods. In the realms of criminology and crime prevention, there will be sessions focused on everything from situations and unique definitions of “neighborhood” to states and nations, with even a few sessions incorporating a focus on gene/environment interactions. We have spread these sessions across the conference in order to expose participants to a variety of criminological applications. There are also many sessions focused on the relevance of context for justice issues involving police, courts, and corrections. Many sessions focusing on race and gender issues also underscore the relevance of the conference theme, where scholars will discuss these issues within broader cultural as well as more specific criminal justice contexts.

Emphases on the role of context will also play out in several of the Author Meets Critics sessions and in tributes to some great scholars who have recognized the importance of context in their own work and paved the way for the myriad of applications you will see this week. Without losing sight of where it all began, here in Chicago, the conference will also recognize the accomplishments of the Chicago Area Project (CAP), founded by Clifford Shaw. CAP is the recipient of this year's Presidential Justice Award. As this year's philanthropic focus of the ASC, please consider donating to one of several community programs run by CAP (website links are located on the ASC homepage).

The program also includes two special plenary sessions, both taking place in the Grand Ballroom. The ASC Awards Plenary, which includes the Sutherland Address by David Garland, will take place on Wednesday evening from 6:30-8:00 pm. It will be followed by an opening reception, where we can mingle to the tunes of Ron Akers and His Bluegrass Band. The Presidential Plenary will take place a bit earlier than it has in recent years. President Robert Sampson will deliver his address at 5:00 pm on Friday. His remarks will be followed by a President's reception from 6:00-7:00pm, which is just the beginning of a fun-filled evening. It will immediately be followed by a large number of departmental receptions from 7:00 pm to 9:00 pm. The evening will conclude with the Minority Fellowship Dance in the Red Lacquer Room (the room is as cool as it sounds). Here, party-goers will be entertained by two bands. A perennial favorite, Larry Sherman and the Hot Spots, will kick things off. They will be followed on stage by amazing Chicago blues in the form of the Matthew Skoller Band. Please don't miss this night of fun (and fund-raising) with colleagues!

We sincerely hope you participate in a cross-section of everything the conference has to offer while also taking in some of the Chicago area attractions noted in the latest issue of the Criminologist. Here we present the final product of nearly a year's worth of work, but none of this would be possible without Chris Eskridge, Susan Case, and Nicole Coldiron, who, aside from re-generating this incredible process year after year, are masters of immediately resolving every type of glitch imaginable. We also want to thank Rob Sampson for his brilliant vision and unrelenting support, the entire program committee who did a superb job forming the largest number of sessions to date, and Arelys Madero-Hernandez for her assistance, including her meticulous management of correspondence and the (seemingly) never-ending revisions to the preliminary program. We hope you enjoy the stimulating context made possible by the contributions of all these individuals.

A SPECIAL THANK YOU

The American Society of Criminology wishes to extend a special thanks to the many publishers and government agencies that have once again chosen to exhibit their materials and sponsor numerous food events.

We greatly value your participation and note that your presence has become an integral aspect of our annual meeting experience. We thank you again, not just for your business, but your support of the field of criminology.
