ADVANCES IN POLICE THEORY AND PRACTICE

For details contact Editor-in-chief Dr. Dilip K. Das at dilipkd@aol.com

Presenting volumes that focus on the nexus between research and practice, this series is geared toward those practitioners and academics seeking to implement the latest innovations in policing from across the world.

This series draws from an international community of experts who examine who the police are, what they do, and how they maintain order, administer laws, and serve their communities.

INTERVIEWS WITH GLOBAL LEADERS IN POLICING, COURTS, AND PRISONS

The focus of this series is to obtain a better understanding of the global challenges that criminal justice leaders face and of the successes they achieve while functioning in an increasingly interconnected and democratized world. It provides a thorough and in-depth analysis – from an insider's perspective – of how key police, corrections, and court leaders and administrators view their roles and the difficulties associated with the changing nature of their work. It aims to record the criminal justice system through interviews with global leaders who speak about the organizational structure, leadership, functions, public projects, training, culture and societal context of their organizations in different countries. The ultimate goal is to discover if external observers' perspectives match what practitioners perceive about their work.

POLICE PRACTICE AND RESEARCH (PPR)

Is affiliated with the International Police Executive Symposium (IPES) www.ipes.info. PPR is a peer-reviewed, international journal that presents current and innovative academic police research as well as operational and administrative police practices from around the world. Manuscripts are sought from practitioners, researchers and others interested in developments in policing, analysis of public order, and the state of safety as it affects the quality of life everywhere. Attention will also be focused on specific organizational information about the police in different countries and regions of the universe.

SUBMISSION OF MANUSCRIPTS

Manuscripts should be submitted online to the Taylor and Francis corrections, website at <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/gppr>. For assistance, please contact pprasociateditors@gmail.com. Manuscripts should normally be no more than 25 typed pages (Word, Times New Roman, 12 Font, DoubleSpaced) in English. Manuscripts should be accompanied by an abstract of no more than 100 words, up to six key words, and a brief biographical Sketch.

The American Society of Criminology embodies the following objectives:

1. To bring together, in one multidisciplinary society, persons actively engaged in research teaching, and/or practice in the field of criminology.
2. To foster criminological scholarship, research, education, and training within academic institutions and within the divisions of the criminal justice system, including public and private agencies concerned with crime, justice, and corrections.
3. To encourage scholarly, scientific, and practical exchange and cooperation among those engaged in criminology.
4. To serve as a forum for the dissemination of criminological knowledge.

CRIMINOLOGY AT THE INTERSECTIONS OF OPPRESSION

Joanne Belknap, ASC President (University of Colorado)
Bonita Veysey, Program Co-Chair (Rutgers University-Newark)
Robert Apel, Program Co-Chair (Rutgers University-Newark)

It is our pleasure to welcome you to San Francisco. This year's annual meeting is the largest to date with over 1,000 sessions, and with over 5,000 presenters representing more than 40 countries. The theme this year is Criminology at the Intersections of Oppression. ASC President Joanne Belknap summarizes the rationale for this theme:

“In my capacity as President-Elect, it felt both daunting and exciting to pick a title of the conference for 2014, the year I'm president. I kept playing with different titles that included the usual list of oppressions, those based on race, gender, and class, but also wanted to add many of the less than typically included oppressions, such as those based on age, trauma histories, sexual/gender identity, nationality, immigrant status, mental health, physical health, etc., that are also relevant in experiences of victimization, offending, and processing by the criminal legal system. How, then, to be inclusive in the title (impossible) and not have a title with a hundred words (ridiculous)? Thus, after lots of thought and bouncing ideas off of a number of my trusted friends and colleagues, I arrived at ‘Criminology at the Intersections of Oppression.’ I hope that this title reflects to others what it does to me—how impossible it is to study crime without examining the individual, and frequently multiple, intersecting marginalizations that impact individuals' risks for victimization, offending, incarceration, and so on.”

At this year's annual meeting, we have scheduled a fabulous and inspirational advocate in the Presidential Plenary, a special session with the ASC Presidential Justice Awardee, and a series of Presidential Panels. The Presidential Plenary—on Friday November 21st from 11:00 a.m. to 12:20 p.m.—will feature Professor Bryan Stevenson, the founder and Executive Director of the Equal Justice Initiative in Montgomery, Alabama, and recipient of too many prestigious recognitions and awards to list. He is also a professor at the New York University

School of Law, professor at the New York University School of Law, and his exemplary career and activism has been devoted to advocating for social and legal justice, particularly in cases of race and class discrimination, including the release of dozens of condemned prisoners. Professor Stevenson is a widely acclaimed public interest lawyer who has successfully argued several cases before the United States Supreme Court. He recently won a historic ruling in the U.S. Supreme Court holding that mandatory life-without-parole sentences for all children 17 or younger are unconstitutional.

This year's recipient of the ASC President's Justice Award is Ms. Lateefah Simon, currently the Director of the Rosenberg Foundation's California's Future Initiative, and before that the executive director of the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights (LCCR). But before all of that happened, Ms. Simon was appointed the Executive Director of the Center for Young Women's Development (CYWD) in San Francisco at the age of 19. Many of you have likely seen the documentary, "Girl Trouble," made about Ms. Simon and the young women/girls she worked with in her capacity as the CYWD Executive Director, and perhaps even used it in your classes. On the last evening of the conference (Friday), prior to Joanne's ASC Presidential Address, "Activist Criminology: Criminologists' Responsibility to Advocate for Social and Legal Justice," Ms. Simon will be receiving the President's Justice Award. In addition, we are scheduling a showing of "Girl Trouble" (Thursday evening) with a panel afterwards of Ms. Simon, Lexi Leban (the film-maker), and some of the young women who were in the documentary.

We have scheduled seven Presidential Panels this year provided by a criminological who's who, including: "Latin@ Criminology: Current Research and Future Directions"; "Towards a Century of Irrelevance? Criminological Study of White Collar Crime"; and five sessions on the "Causes and Consequences of Incarceration Growth in the United States," summarizing the findings from a recent National Research Council committee in a report of the same name. We would also like to draw your attention to tribute sessions in honor of two of our colleagues who passed away in the last year: Austin Turk and William Chambliss.

The ASC Executive Board has also organized a comprehensive series of policy panels focusing on translational research and current problems in policy and practice. These panels include: "Alternative/Restorative Justice Interventions for Domestic Violence"; "Bridging Science and Policy: Desistance Research and Offender Re-Entry Policy"; "Comparative Cultural Perspective on Youth Justice:

Can They Help Us to Make Policy and “Practice More Effective?”; “Felon Disenfranchisement”; “Policing Underground Gun Markets in “Gang” Cities”; “The Impacts of California’s Historical Prison Downsizing”; and series of sessions on “Legal Services for the Indigent.”

Finally, we would like to express our sincere gratitude to Susan Case for her dedicated work on behalf of the ASC, and for holding our hands throughout the whole planning and scheduling processes. We also could not have accomplished anything in a timely manner without the assistance of Ntasha Bhardwaj. These two share the credit for the successes of this year’s meeting, whereas we bear sole responsibility for the failures.

We have very high hopes for this year’s annual meeting, and we hope that your time is well spent in the City by the Bay!

962. Honoring the Contributions of Austin T. Turk through Continuing Discourse (Sponsored by Division on Critical Criminology)

3:30 to 6:20pm Foothill G1, 2nd Floor

Austin Turk's strict definition of criminality as the deviant status assigned by political-legal authorities set his research agenda to focus upon the use of legal power to coerce persons, rather than upon the origins of the legal norms in reference to which the use of such power has been justified by those exercising it. His operating concept of criminalization continues to challenge research in criminology, the study of deviance, and the sociology of law. Turk encouraged rigorous debate as to the nature of conflicts emanating from such power differentials. The speakers here today critique this process of political organization in the context of their own diverse research contributions.

In the last three decades, the criminological field has revealed clear signs of increasing crosstalk between elements that had remained separated for a long time.

Bridges have been established between previously separated terrains, which included:

- Different scientific areas, such as the behavioural, social and biological sciences;
- Theoretical and empirical research;
- Quantitative and qualitative research, experimental and clinical methods;
- Scientific knowledge and social action.

Will this multiplicity be an insurmountable obstacle to the unity? Or might it otherwise be the condition for a complex unity, unitas multiplex, which makes Criminology a singular science? How do these theoretical, epistemological, and methodological developments converge towards the enlightenment of contemporary criminological problems?

This framework will constitute the nuclear core of this conference.

We are very pleased to welcome you in Porto!

Our School's Policy Focus Stands Out:

FACILITATING RESEARCH

Facilitating research in criminal justice and criminology through:

- the preservation, enhancement, and sharing of computerized data resources,
- the production of original research based on archived data, and
- specialized training workshops in quantitative analysis of crime and justice data.

PROMOTING SECONDARY DATA ANALYSIS by

Providing access to a data collection comprised of over 2,200 studies including research sponsored by:

- BJS, NIJ, and OJJDP
- Federal Bureau of Investigation
- Federal Judicial Center
- U.S. Sentencing Commission

SPONSORED by

NACJD is primarily sponsored by agencies within the U.S. Department of Justice. Each of our federal sponsors provides data collections to the archive, funds secondary analysis of criminal justice data, and sponsors educational workshops on quantitative methods of criminal justice research through NACJD.

- The Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) collects, analyzes, publishes, and disseminates information on crime, criminal offenders, victims of crime, and the operation of the justice systems at all levels of government.
- The National Institute of Justice (NIJ) is the research, development, and evaluation agency dedicated to improving knowledge and understanding of crime and justice issues through science.
- The Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) strives to strengthen the juvenile justice system's efforts to protect public safety, hold offenders accountable, and provide services that address the needs of youth and their families.

Creating a just world

The Crime and Justice Research Centre is a leader in producing high-impact interdisciplinary criminological research. The centre is home to distinguished international researchers and is distinctive for its applied research program that focuses on common challenges confronting governments and criminal justice systems around the world.

The centre publishes the International Journal for Crime, Justice and Social Democracy.

Chief Editors: Professors Kerry Carrington and Reece Walters

Research themes

The centre focuses on four key research themes:

1. Social, criminal and Indigenous justice

Our research investigates the gap between the social democratic ideal and the delivery of criminal justice systems, especially for Indigenous Australians who are overrepresented in criminal justice systems.

2. Eco-justice, corporate crime and corruption

White collar crimes such as official corruption, embezzlement and misuse of public funds and resources present major challenges to governments and law.

3. Sex, gender and justice

One of the most prominent patterns in the criminal justice system relates to sex and gender. The research of these patterns is vital to effective contemporary policy.

4. Policing, security and intelligence

We aim to improve the quality of practice-based knowledge in policing, security and intelligence while balancing democratic freedoms.

The centre hosts a biennial international conference, Crime, Justice and Social Democracy. The next one will be 7–10 July 2015. Abstract submissions due March 2015. Call for abstracts from October 2014 www.crimejusticeconference.com

'This conference provided a unique—and refreshing—blend of creative exchange of ideas and an unfailingly welcoming and respectful environment.'

Professor Elliot Currie,
University of California, Irvine.

The rising STAR of Texas

TEXAS STATE UNIVERSITY OFFERS A PH.D. DEGREE IN CRIMINAL JUSTICE

Why a Ph.D. from Texas State University's School of Criminal Justice?

- The School has 19 full-time, doctoral faculty members with backgrounds in criminology/criminal justice, law, sociology, and psychology.
- The Center for Geospatial Intelligence and Investigation is headed by Dr. Kim Rossmo who is the world's leading expert on geographic profiling.
- Doctoral students include both traditional, full-time students and part-time, working professionals.
- Doctoral teaching and research assistantships are available for full-time students and pay about $26,000 for the academic year.

The School of Criminal Justice at Texas State University offers a doctoral program for (1) criminal justice professionals who seek advanced education and (2) students who will pursue academic appointments at colleges and universities in Texas and around the nation. Texas State University is located in the heart of the central Texas corridor, near 16 state criminal justice offices and 13 Texas counties, including Travis (Austin) and Bexar (San Antonio). The university's geographic proximity to state criminal justice agency headquarters for law enforcement, criminal courts, and corrections, and to managers and executives in these agencies, makes it an ideal location for offering a doctoral-degree program.

The doctoral program is part of a vibrant School, with approximately 1,200 bachelor's students, 60 master's students, and 45 doctoral students. Faculty members are involved in a wide range of applied and basic research. A list of faculty and their research interests is available at www.cj.txstate.edu/people/faculty.

For more information, contact: Dr. Mark C. Stafford, Doctoral Program Director * stafford@txstate.edu *

NEW TITLES & EDITIONS

WAVELAND PRESS, INC.

Women's Crimes, Criminology, & Corrections

Joycelyn Pollock

To better comprehend the challenges facing women in the criminal justice system, the author of this new text employs research findings to: describe the prevalence and patterns of women's crimes, review criminological theories, understand female juvenile offenders, look inside the women's prison, examine classification and programming issues, and explore the problems experienced by women upon release and recidivism. Instructor's Manual available

Crime & Criminal Justice in American Society, 2/E

Randall G. Shelden, William B. Brown, Karen S. Miller, & Randal B. Fritzler

This text takes a fresh look at the components and processes of the criminal justice system and offers an alternative interpretation for the statistics and facts about crime and criminal justice. The authors encourage readers to move beyond labeling individual behaviors and to contemplate how societal attitudes and actions contribute to the problem of crime and to the type of justice that exists in the U.S. Instructor's Manual available

Drugs, Crime, & Justice: Contemporary Perspectives, 3/E

Larry K. Gaines & Janine Kremling

The editors' judiciously selected collection of 26 timely articles provide balanced perspective and a foundation for an informed approach to addressing problems associated with drug use.

Law, Courts, and Justice in America, 7/E

Howard Abadinsky

Faculty praised each of the previous six editions (entitled Law and Justice) of Abadinsky's clear, comprehensive overview of the U.S. legal system. The latest edition from Waveland represents a refined, updated synthesis of the complex, fluid justice system in the U.S. Landmark cases, important historical events, illustrative examples, and boxed items highlight or expand chapter content. Instructor's Manual available

Policing: Continuity & Change, 2/E

Geoffrey P. Alpert, Roger G. Dunham, & Meghan S. Strohine

This concise, up-to-date text gives readers a solid overview of police work today. It combines theory, research, policy, and practical experience in a readable presentation of the current context of policing. Instructor's Manual available
