November 2015

Washington, DC
November 18 - 21, 2015
Washington Hilton Hotel

Old Dominion University
PhD Program in Criminology & Criminal Justice

Faculty within the Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice at Old Dominion University have made significant contributions to our collective understanding of crime and criminal justice over the past 40 years through the publication of research findings, journal articles, textbooks, and professional presentations across the globe. Members of the faculty have distinguished themselves as nationally and internationally known scholars, mentors and teachers. In addition, the Department is home to the International State Crime Research Center and the Center for Family Violence Education and Research, the Institute for Community Justice, and the Center for the Study of Work. Since the 1970s the Department has become one of the largest Departments in the University's College of Arts and Letters and our faculty and students are increasingly being recognized nationally and internationally.

This PhD program will produce scholars with strong backgrounds in criminology and criminal justice theory, research methods, statistics, and critical thinking skills. All graduates will be prepared as scholars, able to conduct research, teach college and university courses in their areas of specialization, and provide service to the discipline.

Department faculty are well-versed in current criminological theories, sophisticated research strategies, and analytical tools. Students will be broadly prepared to serve as educators, researchers, and scholars able to contribute to the study of crime at the community and international levels. Students will gain hands on experience doing cutting edge research with department faculty and teaching criminal justice and sociology courses to undergraduates and have the opportunity to partake in groundbreaking research.

The American Society of Criminology embodies the following objectives:

1. To bring together, in one multidisciplinary society, persons actively engaged in research teaching, and/or practice in the field of criminology.
2. To foster criminological scholarship, research, education, and training within academic institutions and within the divisions of the criminal justice system, including public and private agencies concerned with crime, justice, and corrections.
3. To encourage scholarly, scientific, and practical exchange and cooperation among those engaged in criminology.
4. To serve as a forum for the dissemination of criminological knowledge.

WELCOME TO THE 2015 ASC ANNUAL MEETING

THE POLITICS OF CRIME & JUSTICE

Candace Kruttschnitt, ASC President (University of Toronto)

Jean McGloin, Program Co-Chair (University of Maryland)

Christopher J. Sullivan, Program Co-Chair (University of Cincinnati)

It is our pleasure to welcome you to Washington, DC for this year's ASC conference from November 18-21. This year's annual meeting is one of the largest in the meeting's history, with well over 1,000 sessions, roundtables and posters and more than 5,400 presenters. The theme this year is The Politics of Crime and Justice, which ASC President Candace Kruttschnitt thought would be particularly relevant given the location of the meeting and the current events surrounding policing and incarceration in the U.S.

At this year's meeting, we have scheduled three exciting Presidential Plenaries, all of which are related to the conference's theme. First, on Wednesday at 12:30, please join us for "The Politics of Policing American Cities." In light of recent high profile events that have occurred nationwide, this plenary is sure to be an enlightening conversation among several active and retired police chiefs about the challenges and opportunities associated with urban policing. Second, we hope that you will attend the "The American Criminal Justice System: Caught or Not" plenary on Thursday at 11am. This session, featuring a combination of scholars and practitioners, promises to be an exciting and controversial discussion about whether the U.S. truly can (and should) change the current carceral state. Finally, on Friday at 12:30, we look forward to having you join us for "The Media and Criminal Justice Policy", which will focus on how the media shapes criminal justice policy. All of the Presidential Plenaries will be in the same location (International Ballroom Center) – we hope that you will make an effort to schedule each of these sessions into your calendar.

We also hope that you will attend Candace's Presidential Address, "The Politics, and Place, of Gender in Research and Crime", on Friday at 5pm (in the International Ballroom East room). This is also when Candace will present this year's ASC President's Justice Award to Carol E. Tracy, who has served as the Executive Director of the Women's Law Project for the past 25 years. While at the Women's Law Project, Tracy has presided over major legal victories in the areas of reproductive rights, discrimination in employment, education, athletics, and welfare, as well as worked on several initiatives related to violence against women. Particularly noteworthy is Tracy's, and the Women's Law Project, investigation of Police Files in Philadelphia, and a number of other U.S. cities. This inquiry revealed that rape cases were not being investigated or that they were misclassified as non-criminal categories or “unfounded.” This effort resulted in the Philadelphia Police Commissioner allowing Tracy and her colleagues to annually audit the performance of the Special Victim’s Unit – a practice that continues today.

We would also like to bring to your attention the many “Policy Panels”, organized by Laura Dugan in her role as Chair of the ASC Policy Committee. Many of these panels take advantage of the expertise of policy makers and practitioners working in Washington, DC and cover such issues as school violence, terrorism, policing, and immigration, among others.

As Candace noted in her Criminologist article, we have added a new feature to the program this year: “highlighted” sessions that reflect the cutting-edge research identified by ASC’s growing number of divisions. The Division of People of Color and Crime is highlighting their work with a panel on “Boots on the Ground in Ferguson, MO.” Developmental and Life Course Criminologists are highlighting work on “Bringing Diversity to the Forefront of Desistance Research.” The Division of Women and Crime is asking their members to focus on “Queer Criminology and the Maintenance of Disciplinary Boundaries” and the Division on Corrections and Sentencing is highlighting work on “Risk and Need Assessment: Theory and Practice” as a preview of the Division’s Corrections and Sentencing Handbook.

We also want to remind everyone that the poster session is a bit different this year. With more than 400 posters, the popularity of this method of sharing research continues to grow. Therefore, we have split the poster session such that each poster has been allocated to either a 6-7pm or 7:15-8:15 time slot. Of course, wine and cheese will be available at both times!

Finally, we would like to express our gratitude to Susan Case for her dedicated work on behalf of the ASC. We also could not have accomplished anything in a timely manner without the assistance of Teresa Kulig. These two worked extremely hard to ensure that this year’s meeting will be a success and we are very appreciative of their efforts.

We have very high hopes for this year’s annual meeting, and we hope that your time is well spent in our nation’s capital!

A SPECIAL THANK YOU

The American Society of Criminology wishes to extend a special thanks to the many publishers and government agencies that have once again chosen to exhibit their materials and sponsor numerous food events.

We greatly value your participation and note that your presence has become an integral aspect of our annual meeting experience. We thank you again, not just for your business, but your support of the field of criminology.

BOISE STATE UNIVERSITY

Master of Arts—Criminal Justice

The master's degree in Criminal Justice is designed to provide a foundation in research and theory in substantive areas of criminal justice activity and focused scholarship on issues of importance to the field.

The faculty in our department is very productive in terms of teaching, publishing, and service to the community.

This translates into graduate courses that are cutting-edge and relevant as well as opportunities for both faculty-student research collaborations and student engagement in community discipline-related service.

The Department of Criminal Justice at Boise State University was named one of the top 10 M.A.-granting universities in terms of total grant dollars obtained by our faculty (Mustaine & Tewksbury, 2009). A recent internal review determined that our program has a 100% placement rate for students applying to Ph.D. programs.

Graduate Certificate—Victim Services (Online)

There is a growing demand for victim service providers (especially those working within the criminal justice, social, and medical fields) to have academic credentialing specific to working with victims of crime.

Our graduate certificate program meets this need.

- Course work (16 credits) is solely online.
- Courses are 8-weeks long, year-round.
- Created specifically with the working professional/working student in mind.
- Graduate certificate can be completed in one year.
- Application deadline for Fall 2016 admission:

JEFF GRUENEWALD

Assistant Professor
Ph.D. Criminal Justice,
Michigan State University

Jeff has taught graduate and undergraduate courses on terrorism and homeland security, hate crimes and extremism, policing, and other criminal justice topics. He is currently a co-investigator on a project examining patterns of terrorists' behaviors funded by the National Institute of Justice.

TIMOTHY DICKINSON

Visiting Assistant Professor
Ph.D. Criminology and Criminal Justice, University of Missouri-St. Louis

Tim's research interests include the impact of communication on decision-making and the deterrence process among offenders in real-life settings and circumstances. His latest research, published in the British Journal of Criminology, examined the relationship between gossip, decision-making and deterrence among a group of active drug dealers.

Congratulations

FACILITATING RESEARCH

Facilitating research in criminal justice and criminology through:

- the preservation, enhancement, and sharing of computerized data resources,
- the production of original research based on archived data, and
- specialized training workshops in quantitative analysis of crime and justice data.

PROMOTING SECONDARY DATA ANALYSIS by

Providing access to a data collection comprised of over 2,300 studies including research sponsored by:

- BJS, NIJ, and OJJDP
- Federal Bureau of Investigation
- Federal Judicial Center
- U.S. Sentencing Commission

SPONSORED by

NACJD is primarily sponsored by agencies within the U.S. Department of Justice. Each of our federal sponsors provides data collections to the archive, funds secondary analysis of criminal justice data, and sponsors educational workshops on quantitative methods of criminal justice research through NACJD.

- The Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) collects, analyzes, publishes, and disseminates information on crime, criminal offenders, victims of crime, and the operation of the justice systems at all levels of government.
- The National Institute of Justice (NIJ) is the research, development, and evaluation agency dedicated to improving knowledge and understanding of crime and justice issues through science.
- The Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) strives to strengthen the juvenile justice system's efforts to protect public safety, hold offenders accountable, and provide services that address the needs of youth and their families.

RACIAL DEMOCRACY CRIME AND JUSTICE NETWORK

Crime & Justice Summer Research Institute: Broadening Perspectives & Participation

June 27 – July 15, 2016

Rutgers University, School of Criminal Justice

The Racial Democracy, Crime and Justice Network's Summer Research Institute (SRI) is designed to promote scholarly success and career advancement among faculty from underrepresented groups working in areas of crime and criminal justice. Faculty pursuing tenure in research-intensive institutions, academics transitioning from teaching to research institutions, and faculty members carrying out research in teaching contexts are encouraged to apply for the three-week intensive workshop.

Funded by the National Science Foundation and the School of Criminal Justice at Rutgers University, the SRI is organized by Dr. Jody Miller, Dr. Rod K. Brunson, and Dr. Ruth D. Peterson. During the Institute, each participant will complete an ongoing project (either a research paper or grant proposal) in preparation for journal submission or agency funding review. In addition, participants will gain information that will serve as a tool-kit tailored to successful navigation of the academic workplace.

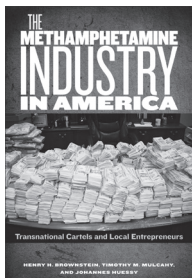

The institute culminates in a research symposium where participants present their completed research before a national audience of faculty and graduate students.

Completed applications must be sent electronically by Friday, February 12, 2016. To download the application form, please see our web site (<http://cjsc.osu.edu/sri>). Send all requested application materials electronically to Maddy Novich, RDCJN Program Manager, at rdcjn@newark.rutgers.edu

Eligibility: All applicants must hold or be entering regular tenure-track positions in U.S. institutions, and be able to demonstrate how their involvement would contribute to broadening participation of underrepresented groups in crime and justice research. Graduate students without tenure track appointments are not eligible for this program.

Please direct all inquiries to rdcjn@newark.rutgers.edu

The rising STAR of Texas

Ph.D. in Criminal Justice

Why do your Ph.D. at Texas State University's School of Criminal Justice?

- We offer both full- and part-time programs, for students interested in an academic or research career, and for criminal justice professionals seeking to advance their knowledge and learn new methods for their current careers.
- Our 116-year old campus is next to the San Marcos River on the edge of the beautiful Hill Country. We are located in the heart of central Texas, close to both Austin and San Antonio. Our proximity to state criminal justice agencies places us in an ideal position to create research opportunities.
- The School has 18 full-time, doctoral faculty members conducting research in such areas as offender decision-making, police response, geographic profiling, sex offending, measurement of crime, macro- and micro-level crime theories, wrongful convictions, and juror decision-making.
- The Center for Geospatial Intelligence and Investigation, headed by Dr. Kim Rossmo, and the Advanced Law Enforcement Rapid Response Training Center, headed by Dr. Pete Blair, are active in a variety of applied and experimental research projects on crime and policing problems.

Ph.D. in Criminal Justice:

The Department of Criminal Justice invites applicants for our Criminal Justice Ph.D. program. This degree is designed to provide professional training for those interested in academic as well as applied research positions.

We are seeking qualified Masters Degree graduates wanting to further their professional careers and who are interested in a 12-month stipend (with health insurance) and full tuition remission. The qualifications for admission to the Ph.D. program are as follows: Master GPA-3.25, GRE-296, and for international students a TOEFL score of 80 on the Internet based test. Graduate assistant appointments include both research and instructional placements.

Our faculty are active scholars, engaging in research that encourages and supports best practices in criminal justice strategies, programs and organizations. The faculty's orientation toward applied research results in strong partnerships with local, state, national and international criminal justice organizations and provides our students with significant research opportunities.

Louisville is a vibrant and diverse metropolitan area of nearly 1 million. The University of Louisville is one of a selective group of public universities nationwide to be designated an institution of "very high research activity" by the Carnegie Foundation.

CALL FOR PAPERS

Manuscripts are solicited for Police Practice & Research: An International Journal (PPR) www.tandf.co.uk/journals or www.IPES.info . PPR is a peer-reviewed, international journal that presents current and innovative academic police research as well as operational and administrative police practices from around the world. Manuscripts are sought from practitioners, researchers, and others interested in developments in policing, analysis of public order, and the state of safety as it affects the quality of life everywhere. The journal seeks to bridge the gap in knowledge that exists regarding who the police are, what they do, and how they maintain order, administer laws, and serve their communities in the world.

Submission of Manuscripts: Manuscripts should be electronically submitted to Associate Managing Editor Francis Boateng at associatemanagingeditor@ipes.info. Manuscripts should normally be no more than 25 typed pages (Word, Times New Roman, 12 Font, Double-Spaced) in English. Manuscripts should be accompanied by an abstract of no more than 100 words, up to six key words, and a brief biographical sketch. For a complete "Notes for Contributors", one should refer to www.tandf.co.uk/journals or visit www.IPES.info .

Police Practice and Research: An International Journal is published by Routledge / Taylor and Francis (UK) six times a year.

The winners of 2015 will be announced in next ACJS Annual Meeting. For more information please contact managingeditor@ipes.info

For details contact Editor-in-chief Dr. Dilip K. Das at dilipkd@aol.com

ADVANCES IN POLICE THEORY AND PRACTICE

Presenting volumes that focus on the nexus between research and practice, this series is geared toward those practitioners and academics seeking to implement the latest innovations in policing from across the world.

This series draws from an international community of experts who examine who the police are, what they do, and how they maintain order, administer laws, and serve their communities.

INTERVIEWS WITH GLOBAL LEADERS IN POLICING, COURTS, AND PRISONS

The focus of this series is to obtain a better understanding of the global challenges that criminal justice leaders face and of the successes they achieve while functioning in an increasingly interconnected and democratized world. It provides a thorough and in-depth analysis – from an insider's perspective – of how key police, corrections, and court leaders and administrators view their roles and the difficulties associated with the changing nature of their work. It aims to record the criminal justice system through interviews with global leaders who speak about the organizational structure, leadership, functions, public projects, training, culture and societal context of their organizations in different countries. The ultimate goal is to discover if external observers' perspectives match what practitioners perceive about their work.

POLICE PRACTICE AND RESEARCH (PPR)

Is affiliated with the International Police Executive Symposium (IPES) www.ipes.info. PPR is a peer-reviewed, international journal that presents current and innovative academic police research as well as operational and administrative police practices from around the world. Manuscripts are sought from practitioners, researchers and others interested in developments in policing, analysis of public order, and the state of safety as it affects the quality of life everywhere. Attention will also be focused on specific organizational information about the police in different countries and regions of the universe.
