WELCOME TO PHILADELPHIA!

Shadd Maruna, ASC President, Queens University Belfast
Jamie Fader, Program Co-Chair, Temple University
Jill McCorkel, Program Co-Chair, Villanova University

As this year's conference organizers, we are honored and delighted to welcome you to the great city of Philadelphia for the 2023 American Society of Criminology conference. The theme of this year's conference is 'Seeking Justice: Reconciling with our Past, Reimagining the Future.' At this moment of generational transition for our field, we elected to use our Presidential Panels to examine how we got here and ask where we should be going.

Our Presidential Panels also take advantage of the conference's location with strong Philly representation. Academic conferences can exist inside a sort of bubble, oblivious to the outside world around them, but criminology is nothing if it is not grounded in the real world. We wanted this conference to be not just in Philadelphia, but of Philadelphia, recognizing the city's storied history as the birthplace of American democracy and, more darkly, mass incarceration. Presidential Panelists include academics of course, both senior and junior, but we have also sought out speakers 'on the ground' in Philadelphia, ranging from the District Attorney to experts with 'lived experience' in the criminal legal system.

The first Presidential Panel is titled "Honoring Criminology's Unpaid Debt to W. E. B. Du Bois," chaired by ASC President-Elect Katheryn Russell-Brown (Wed., Nov. 15, 12:30-1:50 pm). This moderated discussion spotlights the pioneering criminological insights of W.E.B. Du Bois in The Philadelphia Negro and his other groundbreaking works and asks why Du Bois's work was neglected or overlooked for so long in criminology. Panelists Shaun L. Gabbidon (Pennsylvania State University, Harrisburg), Rory Kramer (Villanova University), Hilary Potter (University of Colorado Boulder) and Rose Werth (Northwestern University) will also reimagine a new criminology with Du Bois at the core of the canon.

The second panel, chaired by Ashley Nellis (The Sentencing Project) reflects on the lessons to be learned from the "50th Anniversary of Mass Incarceration" (Thu, Nov 16, 12:30-1:50 pm). Again, using a moderated discussion format, the session will draw on the varied expertise of Keesha Middlemass (Howard University), LaTonya Myers (Above All Odds), Michael Schlossman (University of Maryland, Baltimore), Claire Shubik-Richards (Pennsylvania Prison Society) and Andre Simms (DayOneNotTwo). The session will look backward at how mass incarceration was engineered, what role criminology might have played in that, and what can be done today to dismantle it.

WELCOME TO PHILADELPHIA!

Finally, the third panel, titled “Reckoning with Police Violence in America” (Friday, Nov. 17, 12:30-1:50 pm) asks how and why police in the United States shoot and kill more than 1,000 people every year, and with what the consequences for police-community relations and democracy more broadly. Chaired by Jamie Fader, the panel discussants include Michael Davis (MOVE 9, independent filmmaker), Larry Krasner (Philadelphia District Attorney), Jill McCorkel (Villanova University and Philadelphia Justice Project for Women and Girls), Samantha Melamed (Philadelphia Inquirer), and Alex Vitale (Brooklyn College, CUNY).

On Friday evening, the Presidential Address (Nov. 17, 5:00-6:20 pm) will look at the concept of reintegration as a “social movement.” Appropriately, the President’s Award for the Distinguished Contribution to Justice will be given to the Formerly Incarcerated, Convicted People & Families Movement (FICPFM). Accepting the Award on behalf of FICPFM is David Ayala, Executive Director.

We hope that you will also consider attending the ASC Awards Night (Wed, Nov 15, 6:30-8.30 pm) which will feature a Sutherland Award Address from Darrell Steffensmeier (Pennsylvania State University) and an opening monologue of the highest comedic standards from the ASC President. Among the star-studded cast of prize winners, we will be honoring a new generation of ASC Fellows, including Laura Dugan (The Ohio State), Shaun Gabbidon (Penn State, Harrisburg), Beth Huebner (Arizona State University), and Nancy Rodriguez (University of California, Irvine).

Finally, we want to conclude by giving thanks to all of our colleagues and friends who volunteered their time and energy to serve on the ASC program committee, the local arrangements committee, and all of the ASC awards and standing committees this year. Thank you for your hard work and for agreeing to serve. The Executive Board also needs a shout out. This year, the Board has developed a Diversity Equality and Inclusion statement that seeks to capture the organization’s values, and also implemented some concrete changes in this year’s conference to reflect these, including pilot testing a new Annual Meeting Childcare Grant Lottery to support those conference participants with young children. Of course, a program of this size and scope would be impossible without the incredible guidance of Chris Eskridge and the amazing team in Ohio. This is the first time in 16 years that this process has not been led by Susan Case, so many congrats to Sheena and the team for kicking off a new era with such style.

See you in Philly!

Prisons and Prisoners

Crime and Justice, Volume 51

Edited by Michael Tonry and Sandra Bucerius

Since 1979, the Crime and Justice series has presented a review of the latest international research, providing expertise to enhance the work of sociologists, psychologists, criminal lawyers, justice scholars, and political scientists. The series explores a full range of issues concerning crime, its causes, and its cures. In both the review and the occasional thematic volumes, Crime and Justice offers an interdisciplinary approach to address core issues in criminology.

Volume 51 of Crime and Justice is the first to reprise a predecessor, Prisons (Volume 26, 1999), edited by series editor Michael Tonry and the late Joan Petersilia. In Prisons and Prisoners, editors Michael Tonry and Sandra Bucerius revisit the subject. Through more contemporary and global lenses, the essays featured in this volume not only reframe where we are in 2022 but offer informed insights into where we might be heading.

Contributors to this volume include Michael Tonry, Sandra Bucerius, Shadd Maruna, Gillian McNaul, Nina O'Neill, Robert D. Crutchfield, Sveinung Sandberg, Justin E. C. Tetraault, David C. Pyrooz, Ojmarrh Mitchell, Katherine Beckett, Allison Goldberg, Sara Wakefield, Bruce Western and David J. Harding.

Earn your Master's Degree with Boise State's Criminal Justice Program

— established in 1966 —

The Master's degree in Criminal Justice provides a foundation in applied research and theory, seminars in substantive areas of criminal justice, and focused scholarship on important issues. The Foundation Series are core classes that provide students with the intellectual skills needed for the study of more complex material. The Seminar Series promotes the development of scholarship in particular substantive areas in criminal justice. The Elective Series provides practical application of skills acquired in the core and seminar series in a student's area of interest. Students may pass a comprehensive examination, or write a thesis relevant to issues, policy, or practice in criminal justice.
