ASC/United Nations Liaison Duties

From the ASC Policy Manual, Section 6.10.4.1.3

...These individuals work with the Divisions and individual members to inform them of relevant U.N. activities, and encourage and coordinate participation in such U.N. venues as Alliance, ISPAC, Crime Commission, and Crime Congress meetings. These individuals, utilizing United Nations terminology, will serve as the Society's representatives at United Nations meetings where the Society has a presence. While the United Nations utilizes "representative" terminology, these individuals (and any other U.N.

Liaisons whom the ASC Board may designate) do not represent the Society, nor the Society leadership in the literal sense of the word. They cannot speak for the Society...

Operationally, we would ask the liaison(s) to do the following:

Get information about upcoming UN activities/meetings out to the membership via the ASC web page and newsletter, and the DIC listserv and newsletter. This may also include a table/booth at the ASC Annual Meetings to promote the UNODC activities, the United Nations Crime Congresses, and to generally increase the awareness of ASC members as to the activities and functions of the United Nations in the crime and criminology arena.

Attend the annual UNODC Crime Commission meetings (usually held in Vienna in April), as the ASC representative(s). Purpose of attending this meeting is to acquire an understanding of the most pressing policy-relevant research issues faced by the relevant UN agencies, as well as establishing and maintaining contact with UNODC and other UN-related officials as well as NGOs.

*Prepare a report of the event for the Board, write a piece in the 500 word range for The Criminologist, and pass this same article on to the DIC in particular and other ASC divisions who may have an interest*

Organize 2 or more sessions at the ASC Annual Meetings that have United Nations Office of Drugs and Crime (UNODC) activity relevance, or are of interest to the larger mission of the United Nations.

Collaborate with UNICRI (United Nations Interregional Research Institute) in the preparation of at least one annual publication (I e., UNICRI Research Series on International Crime Issues) based on the paper presentations in one or more of the UN-focused panels (see point 3). This publication will not bear the formal imprint of the ASC, but will acknowledge in the Introduction, that the papers were presented at a panel at the ASC annual meeting.

Organize one or more sessions at the United Nations Crime Congresses (held every 5 years). These will not be noted as ASC organized sessions, but the ASC representative(s) will organize them as a service to our members, and as a service to the UNODC.

*As occasion may arise, attend other United Nations meetings of interest as the ASC representatives, such as the Alliance meetings in New York City, the ISPAC meetings in Courmayeur, and other UNODC and ECOSOC meetings relevant to our field. Prepare a report of the events for the Board, write a short article for The Criminologist when appropriate, and pass this same article on to the DIC in particular and other ASC division who may have an interest.*
