

The Hebrew University is committed to building a culturally diverse faculty

The Institute of Criminology at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem seeks candidates with a record of excellence in research in criminology or related fields to fill a tenure-track position.

To apply, please submit the following materials:

- Curriculum Vitae
- List of publication
- Electronic copies of up to three papers
- Scientific biography outlining research orientation and plans for the coming years
- List of required and elective courses the candidate can teach
- Three letters of recommendation

The language of teaching at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem is Hebrew, though some courses are taught in English. New faculty members are expected to be able to teach in Hebrew within a few years after their arrival.

Please submit all application materials to rfactor@mail.huji.ac.il and to oritz@savion.huji.ac.il.

The deadline for applications is February 1st 2025.

*Please be aware that the appointment is contingent upon approval from the Hebrew University administration.
