

Assistant Teaching Professor, Department of Sociology and Criminology

The Department of Sociology and Criminology at the Pennsylvania State University, University Park campus, invites applications for a full-time Assistant Teaching Professor to start Fall 2025.

This position will involve teaching courses in Criminology at the undergraduate level. Onsite teaching is an essential function of this job.

A Ph.D. in Criminology, Criminal Justice, Sociology, or a closely related field is required by the appointment date. Candidates with a J.D. by time of appointment will also be considered.

In addition, successful candidates must either have demonstrated a commitment to building an inclusive, equitable, and diverse campus community, or describe one or more ways they would envision doing so, given the opportunity.

To be considered for this position, candidates must submit a letter of application detailing relevant qualifications for the job, including a description of teaching experience and interests; a curriculum vitae; and the names and contact information for three references.

System limitations allow for a total of 5 documents (5mb per document) as part of your application. Please combine materials to meet the 5-document limit.

This is a non-tenure-track, term appointment with possibility of renewal.
